The revival at Mount Zion church commenced on the day young Hirth was buried therefrom, and conducted by the pastor, Rev. E. D. Owen, has resulted thus far in 120 conversions, 108 in the church, and last night there were 15 at the altar. Nearly all these are adults—the majority men—and included in the number is the entire Sunday-school class of deceased—17 young men.

The Case of Frederick Martin.
Yesterday morning, shortly after the Criminal court convened, Justice Hagler called Mr. John A. Clark's attention to the motion that he made last Saturday in the case of Frederick Martin, who pleaded guilty to forgery. His Honor said that while he could not permit the plea to be withdrawn, if Mr. Clark would inquire into the case and found any mitigating circumstances, he would then to the court they might have effect in reducing the sentence imposed. Mr. Clark stated that he had made something of an investigation, and instead of withdrawing the plea withdrawn he asked permission to withdraw his motion to that effect, which was allowed.

THE HIRTH MURDERERS.

Mr. Jeremiah D. Baltimore came next. He had neither formed nor expressed an opinion.

Mr. Wells—Will Your Honor ask him where he lives?

Mr. Baltimore—My place of business is 505 Third street southwest.

Mr. Wells—The residence furnished us is 503 Third street southwest.

Mr. Baltimore—My mother-in-law lives there; most of my letters go there; my abode is No. 505. I am married man, and my family lives at 503; I sleep there.

His Honor—That is his abode; there cannot be any doubt about it.

Mr. Miller—You can stand aside. (Challenged by counsel for Pinn.)

Mr. Thomas J. Bartley was the seventh juror. He had neither formed nor expressed an opinion, and was not opposed to capital punishment. He was accepted, which made the second one.

Mr. Augustus J. D. Larkins was the eighth juror called. He had not formed or expressed an opinion, and was not opposed to capital punishment.

Mr. Wells—Where do you reside?

Mr. Larkins—No. 310 M street southeast.

Mr. Wells—What is in the address you have?

The Court—Who was this last served on?

Mr. Wells—On Queenan.

The Court—The juror is excused.

Mr. George A. Sheehan was called. He had not formed or expressed an opinion. (Challenged by the counsel for Bedford.)

Mr. John E. Mulligan came next. He had formed and expressed an opinion which was such as to prevent him from entering an impartial verdict. He was excused.

Alphonso M. Roswell was the eleventh juror called. He had not formed or expressed an opinion. Excused by the counsel for Pinn.

Mr. Horatio N. Esley was called. He had neither formed nor expressed an opinion in the case. He had no conscientious scruples of finding a verdict of guilty in the case of murder. The evidence was positive and conclusive of the parties' guilt.

District Attorney Kirkhill—No man ought to be convicted of murder if the evidence does not warrant it.

Mr. Miller—We are satisfied.

District Attorney Kirkhill—I think I will relieve Mr. Esley of his trouble and excuse him.

Mr. Daniel Donaldson was the thirteenth juror. He had neither formed nor expressed an opinion. He was challenged by the counsel for Pinn.

Mr. John A. Gray was called. He had formed and expressed an opinion, but thought he could give a just verdict upon hearing the evidence. He had no bias in the case.

Mr. Miller thought the answers contradictory, for he was unable to show a person could form and express an opinion without entertaining some bias. He thought it was an insult to a man going into the jury-box with his mind made up. He asked the court to inquire of the juror if he required evidence to remove the opinion that he had formed.

His Honor declined to put the question. The defense excepted, and the Government excused him.

Mr. John W. Kennedy was the next juror. He had formed and expressed an opinion in the case, but would not prevent him from giving a just verdict upon hearing the evidence. He was biased to the extent of the opinion formed. If the evidence offered produced a new opinion, then of course there would be no bias. He had not conversed with any of the witnesses in the case in regard to it.

Mr. Smith—Will the court ask if he has conversed with anybody about the case?

His Honor—I decline to ask the question.

Mr. Smith—We note an exception.

The court then excused the juror.

Mr. Charles B. Pickling was examined. He had not formed a decided opinion in the case either way. He had no scruples as to capital punishment. Accepted by both sides and sworn.

Mr. Joseph W. Arnold was the seventeenth juror. He had neither formed nor expressed an opinion, and was not opposed to capital punishment. He was accepted as the fourth juror.

Mr. Lewis P. Seibold was examined. He had neither formed nor expressed an opinion, and was not opposed to capital punishment. Excused by the defense.

Mr. Edward Cruser was the nineteenth juror, and had formed such an opinion as would prevent him from giving an impartial verdict. He was excused by the court.

Mr. Winfield S. Olive was then examined. He had not formed an opinion, and was not opposed to capital punishment. He was accepted by both sides.

Mr. William Washington, the twenty-first juror, was called and stated that he had neither formed nor expressed an opinion, and that he was not opposed to capital punishment. He was accepted.

Mr. Dorsey Caggett had formed and expressed an opinion, but it would not prevent him from rendering a just verdict upon hearing the evidence. He had no bias against the prisoners. He was challenged by the counsel for Bedford.

Mr. Dorsey E. W. Carter was called. He had no opinion in the case and was not opposed to capital punishment. He was called before he would convict him. Accepted.

Mr. George R. Herlick had not formed an opinion, and was not opposed to capital punishment. He was accepted as the eighth juror.

Mr. Henry Croghan had formed an opinion, but believed that it could be removed by evidence. He was not biased, nor opposed to capital punishment. His mind was open to conviction on hearing the testimony, as the opinion had been formed from reading the newspapers. He was excused by the court.

This concluded the panel, and the court ordered that twenty names be drawn from the jury-box, out of which to complete the panel.

His Honor instructed the eight accepted jurors to retire, and the counsel to retire, and converse with any person in regard to the trial or permit any one to approach them upon the subject.

Hall's Fall and Dorsey were sworn and sworn in, and the trial terminated.

A recess was then taken until 1 o'clock to allow the summoning of the talesmen.

During the interim the mothers of the three prisoners came into the courtroom and remained with their sons until the time arrived for the reconvening of the court.

The accused parties were very cheerful, laughing frequently and did not seem to be troubled about the seriousness of their case. They talked with their sons until the time arrived for the reconvening of the court.

Mr. Richard Kelly was examined, and had not formed or expressed an opinion. Challenged by the counsel for Pinn.

Mr. Thomas W. Berry was examined. He had not formed an opinion, and was not opposed to capital punishment. He was accepted.

Mr. Charles F. Bruce had not formed an opinion, and entertained no conscientious scruples about capital punishment. Accepted.

Mr. Abram Dorsey did not know anything about the case, and thought that anybody doing wrong should be punished for it. He was challenged by the Government, evidently in consequence of his extreme ignorance.

Mr. John F. Cain had not formed or expressed an opinion, and was not opposed to capital punishment. He was challenged by the counsel for Pinn.

Richard L. Berry had not formed an opinion in the case, and had no scruples about capital punishment. He was challenged by the counsel for Bedford.

The talesmen came in very slowly, and at this point, it being 3 o'clock, the suggestion was made that the court adjourn until morning, when the parties summoned would appear.

Colonel Kirkhill thought to be on the safe side that ten more names be drawn from the box. The court directed this to be done, and adjourned.

Two juries selected to sit as follows: Richard Holland, Thomas J. Bartley, C. H. Pickling, Joseph W. Arnold, W. S. Olive, William Washington, David E. M. Carter, George R. Herlick, Thomas W. Berry, and Charles F. Bruce. Of this number seven are white and three colored.

Robert Collier on "Clear Grit."

Robert Collier, the simple, earnest and eloquent preacher and lecturer, who is to deliver his charming lecture on "Clear Grit" at All Souls' church Friday evening, is a self-made man, and has attained his present fame as one of the most eloquent pulpit orators in this country by untiring industry and untiring labors.

He was born in England, and is a native of Yorkshire, England, and was born in 1823. His youth was passed in a factory and in the hard kind of labor, but his leisure was devoted to study. When twenty-four years old he came to this country and settled at Shicklerville, Pa., where he worked at blacksmithing and acted as a local Methodist preacher. In 1859 he embraced Unitarian ideas. In 1859 he accepted a call to the church of the Unity in Chicago, which became renowned under his ministry. Last year he left Chicago to accept a call to the church of the Messiah, New York city, one of the largest and most expensive churches there, costing over a quarter of a million dollars.

The tickets for Mr. Collier's lecture are for sale at Metzger's music store, and those wishing them will do well to apply early, as only a few remain unsold.

The Police and the Ministers.

To the Editor of The National Republican:

Sir: I noticed today that three mounted policemen and two on foot were detailed to escort a minister troupe "up the avenue."

If our police force is doubled, will the escort be increased in proportion? Will mounted men and four footmen? If I could have such assurance I would (as a taxpayer) be in favor of an increase; but it appears cruel for us to allow the minister troupe to pass unmolested, while the police force is doubled.

I am in favor of their escorting minister troupes and "sick" during the day, and their employment in the evenings as ushers, doorkeepers and hackmen, at reception and parties given by our aristocratic citizens. Such duty is not very tiresome and comparatively safe.

The boys went to their work cheerfully, and promise to be in condition at the proper time to give a good and acceptable account of themselves. Captain Snyder has the team in charge, and intends that they shall receive nothing less than a first-class training.

At an early day fuller and more complete data will be given both of the nine and the work mapped out for them the coming season. Suffice it now to say that the prospects are excellent, and the lovers of the game will be well satisfied to some of the finest exhibitions of ball-playing next summer that they have ever witnessed.

The Corcoran Square Market.

The House Committee on the District of Columbia was addressed yesterday by a delegation of citizens in favor of erecting a public market on Corcoran square. Mr. Sanford, chairman of the subcommittee on Markets, tabled the bill, and Mr. Merrick protested against the passage of the bill, saying that Mr. Corcoran had given the Ostrout square before the Kastrot market was built, and the latter market was a success. He stated that the expense of supporting the public markets of the District were $27,000 in excess of the receipts. Action in the matter was deferred until to-morrow, pending which a communication will be addressed to Mr. Corcoran asking for his suggestions on the subject.

The well-known Avenue tobacconist, M. Goldstein, has started up a branch house at 429 Seventh street with his usual liberality and enterprise. It is really the finest establishment of the kind anywhere outside of New York, if not indeed, inside of the City of Washington.

The furnishing of the new room is magnificent, while its stock is simply immense and selected under the special supervision of Mr. Goldstein himself, which warrants the lovers of the weed that the best that the market wants will be more than satisfied at the lowest New York market rates.
